Additional Resources

1. General Event Accessibility and Inclusivity:

- The University of Michigan provides a comprehensive guide on various aspects of event accessibility, including the importance of lactation and reflection rooms, and saccessible restroom facilities. This guide emphasizes the importance of considering physical space and attendee needs in event planning (UM Diversity Initiative).
- Eventbrite offers insights on embedding inclusivity and diversity throughout the event planning process, highlighting the need for representation and the importance of a welcoming atmosphere (Eventbrite).

2. Communication and Engagement:

- Canva suggests making all text accessible through screen readers and ensuring that communication methods are open and adaptable to the needs of all participants, including those who are blind or have low vision (Canva).
- SocialTables recommends providing essential services such as live captioning for attendees who are deaf or hard of hearing and ensuring all presentations are accessible (Social Tables).

3. Technology and Media:

 IncludeAbility highlights the importance of making all media used in events accessible, such as ensuring that videos are captioned and audio-described, and that presentations are designed to be clear and understandable for all attendees (Includeability Homepage).

4. Venue Selection:

 The ADA National Network's guide emphasizes the importance of choosing venues that are physically accessible, including accessible parking, entrance, seating, and restroom facilities. It also touches on the importance of clear signage and avoiding sensory overload (ADA National Network).

5. Diverse and Inclusive Programming:

Congrex Switzerland discusses the need for inclusivity in conference programming, such as ensuring that materials are provided in multiple formats and incorporating a variety of session types to cater to different time zones and accessibility needs (Congrex Switzerland).
